Dear Sir:
Dear Mr. Womack:

I am in receipt of your letter of March 27, 1918. to the wells the Government is putting in for the Indians.

that the wells are a great benefit to the Indians and they keep a lot of their stock from dying for water.

If it were not for the wells they would have lost lots of stock last summer as there was no rain in this part of the country and water was very scarce.

Before the wells were put in up in this part of the country the Indians from up here used to have to go to Keams Canon in the summer time to get water for their stock, and you know how far that is. The wells are a great benefit to the Indians and the Indians appreciate them very much and are very glad to have them.

The only trouble is that there are not enough wells in this part of the country to water all the stock they have. The more wells the Government puts down for the Indians, the more it will benefit the Indians and help more to increase their flocks. Water is very scarce up here now and there are herds of sheep at the windmills all the time, besides horses and cattle.

I think the Government would be doing an act of charity and help the Indians more than anything else if they would put down ten or eight more wells in this part of the country alone, because the water problem is getting to be a serious matter with the Indians, as their flocks are getting larger and water is scarcer.

Yours truly,

(Signed) T. E. Thacker
