Tribal Ownership of Lands--Ordinances Constituting Enforceable Contract on the Part of the Government

Subject to judicial determination in pending litigation, it is believed that the lands of the Colorado River Reservation are held in trust by the United States for the benefit of the members of all tribes of the Colorado River and its tributaries who have or who may be located thereon under Federal authority.

The ordinance of the Colorado River Indian Tribal Council permitting the settlement by the Navajo and Hopi on the reservation constitutes an enforceable agreement on the part of the United States Government.
